Once upon a time, Huuhuwa was in his garden. Ho'e came walking by.

"What a fine garden you have", he said.

"Yes" said Huuhuwa, "It is very nice, but it is hard work."

"I wish I had a garden", said Ho'e.

"Here are some corn kernels. Plant them in the ground" said Huuhuwa, "and soon you will have a garden".

Ho'e was overjoyed so he ran home. He planted the kernels.

"Now seeds", Ho'e said, "start growing".

Many days later, little green plants were coming up out of the ground.

"At last!", shouted Ho'e.

"And now you will have a nice garden too", said Huuhuwa.

"Yes, but you were right. It is very hard work."

HIMU HINIWMA? WHAT'S NEW?

The First Intergenerational Hopi Pottery Festival organized by Mesa Media took place on April 29 at the Hopi Veterans Memorial Center. Chairman Leroy Shingoitewa did an excellent job as the keynote speaker. Sharing his knowledge of tsaqapta and emphasis on Hopilavayi “use the language to understand the value and meaning”. About 100 attendants followed a presentation by Leigh Kuwanwisiwma and Kelly Hayes-Gilpin on Hopi migrations and the meaning of pottery symbols. Participants also received a poster and a language activity booklet in exchange for their involvement in various activities. Refreshments including hohoyisi and somiviki were offered. And potters sold several pieces of pottery.

At the 2017 Gallup Authors Festival, Anita presented her children books “Celebrate My Hopi Corn” and “Celebrate My Hopi Toys”. This was a great opportunity to showcase the Hopilavayvenpi. Tutuvenit ang kuwanlewita'a. Hopi Alphabet. Color the pages. Along with her, more than 40 authors shared their stories and inspiration with visitors.
